

Should You Pursue $1,000,000 Civic Reward Via $1,000 Leaders' Course Tuition -- or $50,000 for Free?

Most everyone knows Mark Zuckerberg, Bill Gates, & Sergey Brin won billions when young, starting their fortunes as Harvard and Stanford students who created social media, office software, and web search all use.

Big fortunes from cool new things now come faster than ever.

The company that makes ChatGPT was recently valued at $500 billion just 3 years after it launched. This scale is what lets 50,000 of you plan to band together to seek $1 million civic rewards via Leaders' $1,000 tuition.

What makes most sense for great young Americans in 2025? Faster Public Solutions suggests all who can:

A) INVEST JUST SOME OF YOUR SPARE TIME, to learn how your personal profile matches up to the real world process -- and whether you might like to seek bigger benefit of startup fortune via full-time work later on.

B) LEARN KEY CIVIC, FINANCE, PSYCHOLOGY, LAW & POLICY INFO THAT CAN HELP YOU LIFELONG

C) POSITION YOURSELF TO WIN YOUR FIRST $1 MILLION, AS THAT'S KEY TO YOUR EASIER FUTURE

By grouping up with others as you learn, you'll maintain your current progress in school or work AND you begin a supportive network of friends to take on the real life-learning adventure of US startup education.

Your worst case? Great new knowledge and personal networks -- depending only on your steady effort.

Your best case? That knowledge & network, plus $1,000,000 civic reward that may lock in as early as 2027.

Tuition creates a virtuous cycle, since you and others know all are committed to learn civic skills & content to jointly seek shared success via big -- and fast -- new US wins. The more who enroll, the more likely success is.

If you opt for Leaders' Course to seek $1,000,000, pop back over from this sheet to FasterPublicSolutions.com and this time click on the yellow highlighted text that takes you to the Leaders' course payment. It just takes a few minutes to enter your name, email, card info. Then just read the short policy terms and click to pay tuition.

Or if you read above and found that the Leaders' Course is not for you, to start seeking $50,000 for free just send an email with your name and phone number to civicreward@fasterpublicsolutions.com We'll be in touch!
